ISPECIAL TO THE WORLD. GRAVESEND RACE-TRACK, May 16. - Talk of the great race between The Bard and Hanover took up more of the time of the horse men at the track and on the way down than speculating on to-day's winners. The great struggle was discussed from every possible standpoint. It is generally admitted that The Bard was the better animal yesterday, but some "way-up" sports gave it as their opinion that on a good track, with even weights, Hanover is still able to give The Bard more than the musi-eal chap gave him yesterday at any distance. Hanover and The Bard will meet again and on this track this meeting. They will both face the starter, in all probability, in the St. James's Hotel Stakes on Thursday, May 24, a weight-for-age race of one mile and a quarter, in which Hanover will shoulder 118 lb. and the Bard 122 lb. A reversal of the decision of yesterday is confidently looked for by the knowing ones. Neither grand stand, lawn nor paddock was as crowded to day as on the first day, although a big crowd of race lovers who came down for business made the journey in spite of the drizzle on the early boats and trains. There could not be a better illustration of the characters of New Yorkers. Six sharp races with some very good entries promised first-class sport. But the Gotham sport hungers for sensations like the Brooklyn Handicsp. The attendance of the fair sex was surprisingly large. They are devoted to races and go rain or spine.

Brown Duke, a well-thought of horse in the auctions, fell a couple of lengths behind going around the first turn. On the backstretch Long Knight, Golden Rule and Raveller seemed to have things their own way, Golden Reel led around the turn into the finish where Queen of Elizabeth mored her to the wire. Brown Duke seemed to be coming through the crowd on a big spurt that be made, but he couldn't hold the pace. Queen of Elizabeth won by two lengths. Valliant was second and Brown Duke third. Composition of the New State Committee-Adjournment.

SEPECIAL TO THE WORLD. BUFFALO, May 16 .- At 1 o'clock this morning there was not much appearance of that sweet harmony which the Republican leaders have been declaring was to be the principal feature of to-day's convention.

The selection of Editor Charles E. Fitch for temporary presiding officer by the State Committee had led to the most rancorous feelings and reckless threats on the part of the old Stalwarts. Roscoe Conkling's ghost invaded the deliberations of the Republican party and it was remembered to Mr. Fitch's cost that he had for years villified and calumniated the dead Senator in most unsparing terms.

At 10 o'clock to-day the New York delega tion held a meeting in the Genesee Hotel, and solemnly declared that, so far as they and solemnly declared that, so far as they were concerned, they would support but two delegates at large. Chauncey M. Depew and Levi P. Morton.

If they adhere to this determination a lively circus my be looked for in the convention when the question of electing delegates at large comes up.

The vote on the New York delegation in favor of Levi P. Morton for delegate-atlarge was twenty-two out of the twenty-four election districts—the First and Twenty-first voting for Hiscock Morton's friends declare that the disaffection will spread to other counties.

It was to avoid this danger that George Bliss at the session last night offered his res-olution of conciliation which was voted down by the State Committee.

The Kings County delegation held a session at the same hour and resolved to stand

The Kings County delegation field a session at the same hour and resolved to stand by David A. Baldwin as an alternate-at-large. The State Committee went into session at 10.30 to consider the questions of enlarging the State Committee and of deciding whether it was best to elect the two delegates-at-large at this convention or to have it go over till the full convention.

at this convention or to have it go over till the full convention.

This the committee decided to do. A committee on resolutions was appointed.

When the delegates resched the Music Hall they found it comfortably filled and uncomfortably cold. It is a spacious meeting place, with a capacity of 2,500 and any quantity of the lis—not the kind that politicians are accustomed to, however—decorating the walls.

A band of unseen and lusty musicians discoursed a variety of choice melodies from the files, from which it is to be presumed there were no flies on the music.

The delegates were massed in the middle of the hall, with the usual banners designating

The delegates were massed in the middle of the hall, with the usual banners designating the various counties.

From the four handsome boxes groups of fair women looked down upon; the delibera-tions and saw a great party in all the throes of harmony, peace and unity.

On the stage were scattered many ladies wrapped up warm. The delegates filed in without authorism the great and small in wrapped up warm. The delegates filed in without enthusiasm, the great and small un-without enthusiasm, the great and small unnoticed.

On the platform were Elbridge Gerry Spaulding, the father of the greenback; Senators Frank Hendricks and Walker, ex-Assemblyman Fred Kruse.

Nearly all the delegates sat with their heavy overcoats on and found them to be none too warm. Senator Hiscock was slightly applied as he stoward to shake heavy overcoats on and found them to be none too warm. Senator Hiscock was slightly applauded as he stopped to shake hands with Clarry Meade.

One of the spectators who occupied a front seat on the platform, and who attracted considerable attention was the venerable uncle of President Cleveland—Seth Allen—who is a red-hot Republican.

At 12.28 Chairman Knapp called the convention to order.

At 12.28 Chairman Knapp called the convention to order.

After a prayer by the Rev. Dr. Mitchell, of Buffalo, the roll of delegates was called.

There are 693 delegates; forty minutes will be occupied by the call.

There was no enthusiasm displayed until the name of Chauncey M. Depew was reached in calling the list of delegates. Feeble applause had been given for Warner Miller, for Stewart L. Woodford, Charles A. Chickering. Alonzo B. Cornell and Cot. George Bliss. But when Chauncey M. Depew's name was called as a delegate from the Twenty-first New York, the convention broke forth in an enthusiastic demonstration, delegates rising to their feet, and ladies waving their handkerchiefs. One delegate raised the Westchester signal-post and waved it in the air, while some one proposed three it in the air, while some one proposed three the air, while some one proposed three cheers.

A moment later Ernest H. Crosby substituted the name of Editor Elliott F. Shepard for that of Chauncey M. Depew, at which there was more enthusiasm.

Frank Hiscock's name as a candidate from the Onondaga district evoked long-continued applause, but it was plain to be seen that, so far as popular favor went for Presidential honors, Chauncey M. Depew has a great lead over the junior Senator from New York.

After the roll was called Mr. G. W. Aldridge, of Rochester, put in nomination Editor Charles E. Fitch, of Rochester, who was unanimously elected and who was escorted to the chair by Gan. Husted and Gen. Carr. Editor Fitch's speech was made up of the usual platitudinous derision of the Democratic party and bombastic culogy of the Republican party. He swung the bloody shirt in a manner that would have delighted John Sherman and Joseph Foraker.

The most significant part of Mr. Fitch's speech were his words that the convention would not instruct their delegates, but would send them to confer with other delegates. He alluded to Blaine in a vague way at first, but when he came down to the point and said the Republican standard-bearer would be the Plumed Knight of 1884 there were three cheers and tumultuous applause, but not to equal that which rollowed a few minutes later when allusion was made to Chauncey M. Depew.

The other cansidates, particularly Gresham, were loudly applauded.

The temporary organization was then completed. Ex. Congressmen, Paine handed were loudly applauded.

The temporary organization was then completed. Ex-Congressman Paine handed in a resolution that a committee of one from each Congressional district be appointed on permanent organization, and his example was imitated by Col. Bliss for the Committee on Resolutions and Clarry Meade for Committee on Credentials. Col. Bliss will act as Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions.

on Resolutions.

Gen. Husted offered a resolution that the new State Committee be organized during the recess and to that end the respective delegations select their man and have him ready for presentation at the afternoon session.

ready for presentation at the afternoon session.

At 2.20 the convention took a recess until 4 o'clock.

The convention reconvened at 5.55. Ex. Congressman Payne, Chairman of the Committee on Permanent Organization, reported the name of Ex. Senator Edmund L. Pitts for Permanent Chairman. It then developed that the committee had had a very lively disturbance to attain this result.

When the committee met five names were presented—those of Gen. James W. Husted, Speaker Cole, Gen. N. Martin Curtis, Senator John Raines and Mr. Pitts. The latter was selected unanimously. His speech, like himself, was short, but substantial.

One of the episodes of the convention was the manner in which Editor Shepard was suppressed in the Committee on Resolutions. Mr. Shepard appeared in the committee with a dozen resolutions. One of them was denunciatory of the Administration of President Cleveland. The committee failed to consider it. Another was denunciatory of Gov. Hill for his position on certain legislation; that was treated in the same way as the former. Another was a pronounced tariff resolution; that suffered the same rate as its predecessors.

The report of the Committee on Creden.

The report of the Committee on Creden-tials was received and adopted without debate.

Then Col. George Bliss reported from the Committee on Resolutions. He said that the committee was met at the outset by a flood of resolutions concerning the national or State administrations, and that they decided to refer all this business to the National Convention. He said that they had been handed a concerning State legtion. He said that they had been handed a number of resolutions concerning State leg-islation, which they had decided to take no action upon.

The only resolutions which the committee had found necessary to report were two affecting legislation at Washington. One was to pledge to the Republican standard-bearers to pledge to the Republican standard-bearers their support in devoting themselves to the American idea of protection, and the second commending the Republican members of Congress for their opposition to the Mills bill and what was termed the "free-trade message of President Cleveland." The previous question was sprung and the resolutions were adopted without debate or composition.

opposition.

Delegate Aldridge then introduced the fol-lowing resolution, which was adopted by a rising vote:

rising vote:

Whereas, By the death of Roscoe Conkling the Republican party has lost one of its most orilitant and intrepld leaders, the State one of its most most eminent defenders. Therefore,

Resolved, We deeply deplore his untimely death,
and his deeds and memory are a priceless legacy,
and will ever be an inspiration to the statesmen

Col. Bliss then offered a resolution in effeet that electors be hereafter selected by the last convention before election. There was some debate upon the resolution, but it

This happily cut the knot which had threatened to tie the convention up in a snarl. He closed by moving that the convention now proceed to the election of four delegates at large.
